A PAIR OF "CLAM" CHAIRS BY PHILIP ARCTANDER IN GREY LONG WOOL SHEEPSKIN

This modern classic was originally designed in 1944 by Danish architect Philip Arctander. The so called “Muslingestolen” or “Clam chair” was first produced by Nordisk Staal & Møbel Central in Denmark. This later version was produced under license by Vik & Blindheim in Norway, circa 1953, and is slightly larger than the original. The legs and armrests are made from beech wood and this particular pair is reupholstered in gray long wool sheepskin. Lately a dispute has arisen whether or not Arctander indeed did design these chairs, and recent evidence points towards Arnold Madsen, a Danish designer also active in the 1940’s-1950’s, being the true creator.
