A GROUP OF SIX STONEWARE VASES BY HANS HEDBERG

A group of six vases made in high-fired faience or stoneware faience by Hans Hedberg in Biot, France. The heights of the vases vary between 9 cm and 21 cm. Hans Hedberg (1917-2007) was a Swedish ceramic artist renowned for his mastery of stoneware faience. His work was characterized by vibrant, large-scale ceramic sculptures, often resembling oversized fruits. Hedberg combined traditional ceramic techniques with innovative glazing methods, resulting in durable, high-fired stoneware pieces with a faience-like finish. His artistry bridged the gap between functional pottery and sculptural art, making him a significant figure in the world of ceramics.
